

Marion A. Jenkinson AOU Service Award, 2011

Author: Fitzpatrick, John W.

Source: The Auk, 129(1) : 193

Published By: American Ornithological Society

URL: <https://doi.org/10.1525/auk.2012.129.1.193>

BioOne Complete (complete.BioOne.org) is a full-text database of 200 subscribed and open-access titles in the biological, ecological, and environmental sciences published by nonprofit societies, associations, museums, institutions, and presses.

Your use of this PDF, the BioOne Complete website, and all posted and associated content indicates your acceptance of BioOne's Terms of Use, available at www.bioone.org/terms-of-use.

Usage of BioOne Complete content is strictly limited to personal, educational, and non - commercial use. Commercial inquiries or rights and permissions requests should be directed to the individual publisher as copyright holder.

BioOne sees sustainable scholarly publishing as an inherently collaborative enterprise connecting authors, nonprofit publishers, academic institutions, research libraries, and research funders in the common goal of maximizing access to critical research.

The Auk 129(1):193, 2012
© The American Ornithologists' Union, 2012.
Printed in USA.

MARION A. JENKINSON AOU SERVICE AWARD, 2011

JOHN W. FITZPATRICK

John W. Fitzpatrick, in the mountain pine ridge region of the Maya Mountains, December 2011.
(Photograph by Molly Fitzpatrick.)

One of the most accomplished ornithologists in North America and one of our most dedicated members, Dr. John W. Fitzpatrick ("Fitz") has an exemplary record of service to his professional home society, the AOU. With greatest appreciation for his outstanding contributions to the AOU, the Executive Committee proudly chose John Fitzpatrick as the 2011 recipient of the Marion Jenkinson Service Award.

Fitz joined the AOU membership as an undergraduate student at Harvard University in 1972. He became an Elective Member in 1979 and a Fellow in 1986. He received the Brewster Medal (with Glen Woolfenden) in 1985 for their landmark studies on endangered populations of the Florida Scrub-Jay.

The AOU continues to benefit from Fitz's many published contributions, eminent participation in the scientific programs of our annual meetings, and distinguished accomplishments in bird conservation. Generous partnerships with the AOU have accompanied his leadership roles at the Field Museum of Natural History, as executive director of the Archibald Research Station (1988–1995), and as director of the Cornell Lab of Ornithology (1995–present). As just one example, Fitz served on the managing board of the AOU's encyclopedic Birds of North America project (BNA), converted BNA to an online public resource of the Cornell

Lab of Ornithology, and then worked with the AOU to provide access to BNA as a benefit of membership in the AOU.

Fitz has served with distinction in the governance of the AOU for 30 years. He was President from 2000–2002 and continues as Life Councilor (2002–present). As chair of the Committee of Investing Trustees (1989–present), Fitz has guided the long-term financial health of the AOU for 22 years. Fitz's other formal service roles at the AOU have included Elected Councilor (three stints: 1981–1984, 1985–1988, and 1991–1994), Chair of the 100th Annual Meeting (1982), and Member of Committee on Classification and Nomenclature (1983–1998).

John Fitzpatrick's many contributions to the AOU set the highest possible standards for us all and are a model of professional service for the next generation.

Award criteria.—The Marion A. Jenkinson AOU Service Award was created by the Council in 1996 to honor Marion Jenkinson Mengel, who served the AOU as treasurer and in other capacities for many years. It is awarded to an individual who has performed continued extensive service to the AOU, including holding elected offices but emphasizing volunteered contributions and committee participation. Recipients are selected by the AOU Executive Committee. The award consists of a framed certificate.